Preface

The records of the meetings of the Society from January 29, 1849, to March 18, 1854, inclusive, will be found in the preliminary matter affixed to the reprint edition of volume i of the Wisconsin Historical Collections, pp. xxx–lix. The index to this reprint (published 1903) comprises also an index to the above records.

In each of the first ten volumes of the original editions of the Collections, Secretary Draper published the several Annual Reports of the Executive Committee made since the preceding volume—volume i containing such Report for 1854, and so on. These were severally indexed for each volume; but often the publication was only a popular synopsis of the Report actually presented to the annual meeting.

The first separately-printed Proceedings in any form, is that of the 22d annual meeting (January 2, 1875)—a pamphlet “separate,” apparently from the type of the Madison State Journal. For twelve years thereafter, all of the Executive Committee’s Reports, without accompanying transactions of the Society, were published in pamphlet form—but they appeared irregularly, and often several such Reports (or synopses thereof) were included in the same pamphlet; the type used was, for the most part, that of the volume of Collections in which they appeared.

Commencing with the 34th annual meeting (January 6, 1887)—at which the present writer was elected secretary—the Society has annually published its Proceedings in detail, as a publication apart from the Collections; which latter have, since that time (commencing with volume xi), contained only historical essays and material. Commencing with the Proceedings of the 35th annual meeting (January 5, 1888), addresses and papers presented to the Society have been published with nearly every volume—the design being eventually to restrict the Collections to the presentation of materials for history, reserving essays thereon for the Proceedings.

It has not been the custom, nor does it seem practicable, to provide an index to each of the small annual volumes of Proceedings. These contain, however, a great variety of administrative, statistical, biographical, and historical information, which it will be well at least occasionally to index in detail, in order that this material may the more readily be available for consultation. The present volume is the first essay in that direction. Commencing with the Executive Committee's Report for 1874 (the 21st Report, presented at the 22d annual meeting, held January 2, 1875), this Index continues through the transactions of the Society at its 49th annual meeting (December 12, 1901). Thus there have now been published a continuous series of indexes to the records of the Society from 1849 to 1901 inclusive: (1) Index to the Early Records (1849–54), in the reprint edition of volume i of the Collections; (2) indexes to the several synoptical Reports (1854–85) in the first ten volumes of the Collections; (3) the present index, covering all of the separately-published Proceedings (1875–1901). It is proposed to publish every five years a supplemental index, thus greatly adding to the usefulness of the Proceedings.

Even at the expense of some repetition of statement, a special paragraph of explanation is necessary, relative to the numbering of the several Proceedings. It has already been explained that previous to 1887 only the annual Report (or synopsis thereof) of the Executive Committee was printed; the numbering adopted was that of the Report itself, and not of the annual meeting at which it was presented—i. e., the first Annual Report of the Committee was submitted at the 2d annual meeting, and so on. But commencing with 1887 (the 34th annual meeting), the full transactions of the meeting were printed, together with all the reports and other documents presented thereat; making it seem desirable that thereafter, despite the bibliographical confusion thus temporarily created, the publication should adopt the number of the meeting. This accounts for the apparent hiatus between the 32d Annual Report (1886) and the Proceedings of the 34th annual meeting (1887). These respective publications are consecutive.¹ The bold-faced type (e. g., 34) designates the number of the Proceedings cited in the Index; the light-faced type, the page or pages in that number.

The principal work upon the Index has been skilfully performed by Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Haines, of Brooklyn, N. Y. In revision for the press, and in the still more arduous task of proof-reading, the Editor has had the competent assistance of Miss Annie A. Nunns, of the Society's library staff.
